

Bleeding Heart Recordings

Privacy Policy

We respect your privacy. Any personal information you share with us, such as your email address or postal address, will never be shared with any 3rd parties, other than that necessary to complete your order. If you place an order with us, we retain your postal address only for as long as needed in order to fulfil your order.

Orders are placed with us via Bandcamp. Bandcamp have their own privacy policy that is available to view on their website.

As a fan of new music, we wouldn't want you to miss out on new releases or events so we retain your email address when you agree to sign up to our mailing list. You'll notice, we don't email you very often. However, if you no longer wish to hear about forthcoming new music or events from us then please let us know, and your details will be removed. You may do this at any time by using the unsubscribe option that is available on our communications, or you may contact us via admin@bleedingheartrecordings.com.

We use Mailchimp to send mailouts, and our mailing list information is held within our Mailchimp account. Mailchimp have their own privacy policy that is available to view on their website.

We do not collect any data via visits to our website, and do not place cookies on your device. This notice does not cover links to, or content from external websites. We encourage you to read the privacy statements on the other websites you visit.

Updated: 29 May 2018